Hayley Paige

Hayley Paige, head designer of the Hayley Paige and Blush by Hayley Paige collections, made a jump start in fashion by interning for Nina Garcia at Elle magazine while attending Cornell University.

She went on to work in ready to wear for Jill Stuart and eventually established herself as an integral designer for the Melissa Sweet bridal and bridesmaid collections. Paige also became the primary designer behind the first Marchesa Eterna bridal collection at Priscilla of Boston. Her contributions can be found in highly sought-after bridal publications, as well as boutiques nation-wide.

Ever so eclectic, her designs capture a romantic and charming aesthetic that balances inner ingénue and sophistication. Her desire to dress hopeful romantics has provided a foundation for a fanciful and fresh take on bridal wear. Never taking herself too seriously and fully embracing the adorning history of the bridal industry, Hayley Paige develops her craft from an inspirational place of appreciation and enjoyment.
